Academic Wall Calendars Available at Print Shop

New this year, the University Print Shop is offering an academic wall calendar for $2.50 each. The 12-month calendar (September 2015 – August 2016) contains all the information from the previous wall calendar produced by the Print Shop. The calendar measures 8 ½" x 11" when closed and 11" x 17" when opened, is stapled and has a hanging eyelet. The courtesy large-format wall calendars are not available this year. To order your calendars, email the Print Shop at print.shop@mwsu.edu. Be sure to include the quantity, office extension, and account number.

In the Spotlight

Andrew J. Allen, Assistant Professor of Music, was a delegate to the 17th World Saxophone Congress in Strasbourg, France, from July 9-14. He presented a solo recital to a standing-room-only crowd that included a world premiere performance of a new work dedicated to Allen by composer and Guggenheim Fellow Jesse Jones. In addition, he presented a lecture on the history of the saxophone ensemble. The triennial conference included professional saxophonists and academics from 47 nations.

Sharon Arnoult, Associate Professor of History, co-conducted a workshop on Prophetic Mourning on June 19 at the Attending to Early Modern Women conference in Milwaukee, Wis.

Claudio Rodriguez, Complex Coordinator of Housing and Dining Services, was awarded with the Staff Senate's You Make a Difference Award. During M.O.R.E., he stepped in and helped translate for a set of parents attending. Claudio went out of his way to make M.O.R.E. a success for that group of parents. Thank you for going the extra mile.

Frank B. Wyatt, Professor of Exercise Physiology, co-authored four presentations at the National Strength and Conditioning Association annual conference in Orlando, Fla.. The titles of the four presentations were the following: "Do Bilateral Strength and Power Deficits Effect On-Ice Sprint Performance In Elite Junior Hockey Players?"; "The Relationship Between Soccer Performance Tests and the Ranking Order of Collegiate Soccer Players"; "The Comparison of Preseason Testing Protocols: Can We Predict Injury For Subsequent Exposure in Sport?"; and "Is Resisted Spring Training More Effective Than Non Resisted Sprint Training At Increasing Linear Speed?".

Angie Reay, Pamela Moss, and Todd Giles attended the National Resource Center's Institute on Developing and Sustaining First-Year Seminars July 24-26 in Atlanta.

Julie Gaynor, Director of Marketing and Public Information, attended the COPLAC Summer Institute on Liberal Learning for Communications and Marketing June 11-13 at the University of North Carolina Asheville.

Roberto Fuertes-Manjón, Professor of Spanish, presented a paper, "Cine y literatura indigenista en México: las contribuciones de Carlos Vela y Luis Alcoriza," at the 35th Annual Conference of ALDEEU (the Association of Spanish Professionals in America) held in Segovia, Spain.

Vicki Sanders, Assistant Professor of Radiologic Sciences; Rodney Fisher, Assistant Professor of Radiologic Sciences; and James Johnston, Dean of the Robert D. & Carol Gunn College of Health Sciences and Human Services attended the 2015 Annual American Society of Radiologic Technologists (ASRT) House of Delegates meeting as nationally elected delegates June 25-29 in Albuquerque, N.M. The ASRT is the national society of radiologic technologists and radiation therapists.

- Sanders served as the 2014-2015 Registered Radiologist Assistant Chapter Steering Committee Chair and student leadership program mentor. Fisher served on the 2014-2015 ASRT Commission. Johnston served as the 2014-2015 Chairman of the Committee on Bylaws, Education Chapter Steering Committee Chair, and student leadership program mentor.
- Jeff Killion, Professor and Chair of Radiologic Sciences, was elected vice chair of the ASRT Education Chapter Steering Committee for the upcoming 2015-2016 year. Rodney Fisher was elected chair of the ASRT Nuclear Medicine Chapter Steering Committee for 2015-2016.
- Beth Vealé, Professor of Radiologic Sciences, was a co-presenter in the lecture Publishing for Novices, discussing writing and submitting a case study, understanding collaborative writing, and the role of the editorial review board. The presentation was given at the 2015 ASRT Educational Symposium held in conjunction with the ASRT annual meeting.
