IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Bradley Wilson, Associate Professor of Mass Communication, moderated a panel discussion featuring former White House photographer Pete Souza at the Association of Texas Photography Instructors convention in late February. From the students who applied, Wilson selected nine students representing three different states to ask Souza questions. More than 450 students and instructors from Texas, Kansas, and California attended the virtual conference that featured dozens of lecture-type sessions, hands-on sessions and contests. Souza was the official White House photographer during both of Barack Obama's terms and also for Ronald Reagan. Souza's Instagram, @petesouza, has become a place where he can display and comment on current events. Souza was also the first to release many of the photos he took while photographing for the White House online via Flickr — <https://www.flickr.com/photos/obamawhitehouse/> — for anyone to see and any media outlet to use.

Wilson also is led a virtual workshops the first week of March for the National High School Journalist Convention, including a session on "Magazine Design During a Pandemic."

Two master's students in the exercise physiology program presented their work at the Texas chapter of the American College of Sports Medicine February 25-26:

- Rasika Bhide presented "The Effects of Dance-Based Exercise on Body Composition, Physical Fitness, and Cognitive Function in Older Adults." Co-authors included Ahn Tran, Lisa Garcia, Lydia Acuna, and Dr. Christanie Monreal. Dr. Soon-Mi Choi mentored this project.
- Natalie Delgadillo presented "Paraspinal Muscle Fatigue Influences Trunk Kinematics during Single-Leg Drop jump Landings." Dr. Michael Olson mentored this project.
