MSU's First-year Experience program is designed to help our new students acclimate to college, and Learning Community courses are a key component of this programming. At MSU, two faculty collaborate to link two first-year courses and create at least three integrative assignments. The same group of students register for both courses, giving them opportunities to connect with their teachers, meet new people, and engage in an intense learning experience. While every Learning Community pair will be unique based on the different instructors and course content, they will all work to achieve enhanced learning, critical thinking, and a sense of community. These courses are intended for any student new to MSU, regardless of semester credit hours; they should not be taken by returning or continuing students who should choose among the many other options available to them.
